Bongbong Arrest Warrant, Contempt of Court US

2005
The son of former Philippine dictator Ferdinand Marcos has been ordered to appear in federal court during a goodwill visit here early next month. The order, issued Wednesday, allows Ferdinand "Bong Bong" Marcos to travel to Hawaii despite contempt-of-court charges pending against him and his mother, Imelda Marcos.

Imelda Marcos and her son were found in contempt of court in 1995 after Real ruled that they violated a court order freezing their assets and fined them $100,000 a day since then.
https://www.chicagotribune.com/news/ct-xpm-2005-01-30-0501300052-story.html

2011
In January 2011, a court in Hawaii held Imelda Marcos and the couple's son, Ferdinand Marcos Jr., in contempt for refusing to furnish information and for continuing to use frozen assets of the estate. It ordered them to pay a fine of $353.6 million (18.3 billion pesos) for the victims' benefit.
https://www.benarnews.org/english/news/philippine/marcos-settlement-04102019131141.html

On Jan. 25, 2011, the US District Court of Hawaii rendered a judgment of contempt against Mrs. Marcos and her son after they violated the preliminary and permanent injunctions for the purpose of preventing the dissipation of the estate of President Ferdinand Marcos while the case was pending before it.

The US Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit has upheld a contempt judgment against Ferdinand Jr., his mother and the estate of his father for violating an injunction that barred them from dissipating assets of the estate.

The judgment amounting to $353.6 million is believed to be the largest contempt award ever affirmed by an appellate court.
https://news.abs-cbn.com/nation/07/02/15/group-wants-us-order-vs-imelda-bongbong-enforced

2012
The court has required them to pay $353.6 million – the largest ever award for a contempt case — for violating a US court order not to dissipate their assets, which have been earmarked as compensation for victims of the martial law imposed by Ferdinand Marcos Sr. in the 1970s.
https://newsinfo.inquirer.net/297960/marcoses-opt-to-keep-mum-on-353-m-contempt-judgment-from-us-court